

From Wisdom and Truth to Effect

If the cause of an effect is based on wisdom and truth, then this leads to good works and paths.
The wisdom and truth of the Bible.

Friedhelm M. Jöge

Behind every effect lies a cause. Everyone knows the principle of "cause and effect." Behind every cause lies information, and it is the actual cause of the effect. This article substantiates and fundamentally discusses the origin of information through biblical quotations; among other things, it also explores where humans acquire information and thus knowledge, gaining new insights in science and research; namely, that God places the thoughts of people in their hearts.<sup>1</sup> Research has shown that the heart and brain are closely and extensively connected through the autonomic nervous system and neurotransmitters. This is known as the brain-heart axis.

For in Him we live and move and have our being (Acts 17:28). He surrounds us on all sides, which emphasizes the omnipresence of God (Psalm 139:1-5).

No one should believe they have discovered something and are boasting about it, and are seeking honor, attention, advancement and career, even leading to a professorship or the Nobel Prize. It comes from God alone! You are worthy to receive glory and honor and power, for you created all things, and by your will they have their being and were created. To him belongs Glory alone. For further Bible verses, see "Bible verses".

Hiking in nature and along the beaches of the seas inspires us to ask new questions regarding knowledge and to promote research.

According to Kneipp, water treading promotes blood circulation. Nature is also the best therapy for healing minor ailments, especially mental and emotional suffering.

Immersing oneself in nature (matter ~ energy) – in God's word, which is dynamic information and energy/ power – promotes well-being and health and, through reflection on Bible verses, offers a partial experience of being in eternity.<sup>22</sup> If wisdom and truth are not shaped by the Bible, then things look bad for the world; then fake news endangers the coexistence of nations and dictators and autocrats gain the upper hand.

Immanuel Kant, the central philosopher of the German Enlightenment, whose work centers on the Critique of Pure Reason, demonstrated that pure reason (thinking without experience) is insufficient to prove metaphysical questions such as the existence of God or the immortality of the soul. He investigated what reason can accomplish prior to all experience. His goal: Reason should come to know itself, so as not to remain mired in "dogmatic groping." Reason is

Reason is not only responsible for knowledge, but also for the source of the moral law

(categorical imperative). A person is truly free when their will is determined solely by reason, not by impulses or inclinations.

These statements are not based on reason or light, but on ignorance and darkness. See Bible verses. 1-12

In contrast, the statements made by Blaise Pascal are to be given much greater weight. He said:

Jesus Christ is the center of all things and the reason for all things, and whoever does not know him knows nothing of the world and nothing of himself.

Knowing God without knowing our misery is a sign of arrogance. Knowing our misery without knowing God is a sign of despair. Knowing Jesus Christ provides the middle ground, because in him we find both God and our life.

Even „self-philosophy“ is misleading.

Evolutionary biologists speak of „self-organization of matter“, which is logically incorrect; because if that were the case, one wouldn't need to do anything oneself and could simply sit it by.

Organization only happens through intelligence. True intelligence comes from wisdom, truth and truthful information. The wisdom and truth of the Bible.

physical-mathematical formulations

The Nobel Laureate Anton Zeilinger says:

Information and reality are two sides of the same medal.

$A = h \ln 2 H$  Equivalence of Information & Effect [1.5]

$E = h \cdot \ln 2 \cdot H / t$  Equivalence of Energy and dynamics
 Information = Information flow

$A$  = Action, Effect, Impact  $E$  = Energy

$H$  = SHANNON's Information entropy

$H/t$  = dynamic Information = Information flow

$t$  = time

$h$  = PLANCK's quantum of Action

Conclusions:

The governments of nations should heed this in order to create a peaceful world and to preserve international law, without which no community of peoples can exist.

The resulting values should also be taught in all types of schools.

The speak of the evolutionary biologists of „self-organization of matter“ is wrong and is to change with „organization only by intelligence“.

Being in you, God, that is everything. That is the whole, the perfect, the healing. Close your physical eyes, open the eyes of your heart, and enter into your presence. I leave all my distractions and entrust myself to you. I lay myself inside you as if into a great hand. I don't need to speak for you to hear me. I don't need to list what I is missing, or to tell you what is happening in this world and why we need your help. Within you to be, God, that is all I ask for. With that, I have asked for everything I need for now and eternity.

Bible passage 16 expresses that humans do not exist by chance, but are created by God. This creation is purposeful, namely for good works that God planned even before creating humankind. Humans are therefore meant to follow these paths and perform these works prescribed by God.

Bible passage 33 clearly expresses that God alone is worthy to receive praise, honor and power, since he is the creator of all things.

Verses 1-9 in Ephesians 2 describe how people were separated from God by their own actions and unbelief. But through God's grace and through faith in Jesus Christ, they are reconciled to God and called to a life characterized by good works, which God has planned for them.

These Bible passages show that the Bible does not view truth merely as an abstract idea, but as something that manifests itself in the ways and actions of people and is connected to God's actions. In ways, effect is achieved and information and wisdom are revealed (Psalm 51:15).

Information and effect correspond to sowing and harvesting.

The biblical passages also make it clear that God and Jesus Christ are the sole source of glory, honor, and power, and should therefore be worshipped and honored without reservation.

Gratitude and praise are the best medicine for the soul! Their effect can become a source of strength, lifting us away from complaining and from taking most things for granted. So much gives us reason to be grateful.

When we reflect on our life's journey, most of it is not solely due to our own achievement and merit.

We owe much to the people around us, and some things to role models.

Praise and criticism have helped us improve. Difficulties and setbacks have usually made us stronger.

If we follow these thoughts to their conclusion, we will realize that we owe everything to a greater being, God: the world, our lives, the fact that we are allowed to believe, love, and hope.

That's why we should never forget to give thanks. Every day, I personally praise God. And every day the feeling grows stronger: the more I thank God and share my gratitude with others as a source of help, the better I feel, the more joyful and comforted I become.

Gratitude and praise are therefore inextricably linked. A "thank you" is the lubricant of social relationships. Try it; the effect won't be long in coming.
Souls who strive to live entirely in God experience the divine presence even in small things of everyday life.
